ABSTRACT

This report by the Department of Education examines the progress made by the Student Financial Assistance (SFA) program in reaching its objectives. The report notes that for objective 1, customer satisfaction, more than 4 million direct loan records have been processed and over 1 million updates applied since winter 1999; that 84 percent of school certifications have been processed within the 120-day standard; and that a Web-based function which provides accurate and timely information on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) has been implemented. For objective 2, reduce the overall cost of delivering student aid, it is noted that electronic processing of FAFSA has increased by 25 percent; that new electronic billing for direct loan borrowers eliminates the need for paper documentation; that the design of the new financial system is on track; and that a draft design for new technical architecture has been completed. For objective 3, employee satisfaction, the report notes that SFA is now providing training to its employees on a wide range of subjects; that it is in the process of identifying the top five employee satisfaction issues; and that it is seeking a new Washington, DC location. A two-page checklist of performance plan indicators is included. (CH)

CBJECTIVE ONE: Customer Satisfaction

- In winter 1999, the Direct Loan Servicer began participating in the National Student Loan Clearinghouse (NSLC). The Clearinghouse provides the most current enrollment data from all participating schools. Since its participation, over 4 million Direct Loan records have been processed and over 1 million updates applied.
- Processing school recertifications within 120 days of receipt is an important goal that Student Financial Assistance (SFA) has taken seriously this quarter. In December 1999, 84 percent of school recertifications were processed within this standard, double the percentage processed in September 1999, and well on the way toward achieving the goal of 95 percent.

All is Running Smoothly

As SFA oversees the delivery of over $51 billion in federal student aid grants and loans to nearly 8.4 million students and parents, the operation of day-to-day activities continues to run smoothly. FAFSA processing time remains under 8 days, and Direct Loan consolidation is now being performed in 50 days, less than the performance goal of 60 days. The Call Center (1-800-4 FEDAID) response rate exceeds the goal of 95 percent for the first quarter of 2000, and the Default Recovery Rate remains above 10 percent.

"Really impressive, that's what it is! Not four weeks after we talked, and each of the problems I brought to you are resolved. This is a winner! Thanks for the help."

Financial Aid Officer Oregon

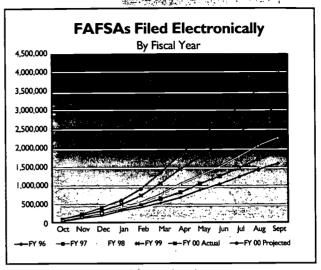

- SFA implemented a Web-based function that provides a more accurate and timely status on Free Application For Student Assistance (FAFSA) applications. Prior to this, only Web-submitted applications could be checked. Initial feedback from students has been very positive.
- Software is now being used by five states and consortia that transfers appropriate admissions application information electronically into the FAFSA on the Web simplifying the application process for student and parent borrowers and reducing the error rate.
- After testing with customers, SFA's redesigned electronic consolidation application is now available to make applying simpler and more user friendly.

OBJECTIVE TWO: Reduce the Overall Cost of Delivering Student Aid

- SFA is on track to receive 4 million electronic FAFSA applications by September 2000, up 25 percent from the last cycle. Taxpayers save 45 percent when electronic applications are used instead of paper applications.
- New electronic billing for Direct Loan borrowers allows them to receive statements and make monthly payments electronically, eliminating the need for exchange of paper documents.
- The design of SFA's new Financial System is on track. This new integrated system will allow each Channel manager to focus attention on making SFA operate more efficiently and at a lower unit cost.
- SFA has completed the draft design of the standard technical architecture, which will allow for the migration from today's legacy systems to a streamlined environment. This will allow SFA to better leverage technical investments and gain use of technical architecture components across many SFA initiatives.

"What if everyone were as thoughtful as you? I really appreciate the many conversations that we shared in resolving my loan problems."

OBJECTIVE THREE: Employee Satisfaction

- * "SFA University" is now providing high-quality training to SFA employees on a wide range of subjects. In addition to training on Title IV programs, training is available for technical and leadership skills. Additional training will be provided for employees moving to new responsibilities or performing prior duties in new ways.
- SFA's Labor Management Partnership Council has developed an Employee Satisfaction Team, which is in the final stages of identifying the top five employee satisfaction issues for this year. Once identified, SFA will focus on these priorities.
- ❖ SFA is working with the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and the General Services Administration (GSA) to find a new location for its Washington, D.C. offices. While plans are still in the beginning stages, it is expected that the relocation will occur within the next eighteen months.

Dear Customers and Partners:

Our first progress report of fiscal year 2000 shows us off to a flying start. Our service is faster and more courteous than ever, our costs are coming down, and the whole SFA team is ready for action. These brief pages highlight some results of the tremendous effort the team has made, the new partnerships we've forged, and our preparations for even higher performance. But what matters most is what our customers have to say, so we put their words in, too—words like "thoughtful," "impressive," and just plain "thanks." That's why we come to work—to help put America through school. We succeed when their dreams of bright futures come true.
